BOT-2 UNCG CHANCE Program

Background Information

UNCG CHANCE is a six-day summer program for Latinx rising high school juniors and seniors. During their time on campus, students participate in college preparation and leadership skills development. They also engage with university professors, students, and staff to develop a peer/professional network forging positive, healthy mentorship connections focused on academic success and personal growth. The program encourages Latinx students to attend college by increasing their awareness of higher education and showing that it is well within reach.

In August, national group Excelencia in Education named CHANCE a “program to watch”; one of just twenty programs nationwide to receive this recognition.

Dr. Andrew Hamilton, Associate Vice Provost of Student Success and Dean of Undergraduate Studies, and Dr. Rod Wyatt, Senior Director, College Completion Initiatives, will provide an overview of the Program.
